Make sure you book early for this ever popular gentle journey back in time

Thursday 8th September 2011 6.30pm for 6.50pm cast off

Enjoy a relaxing evening in good company with a well stocked bar gliding along through the peaceful Devon countryside on the last Horse-Drawn barge in the South West

Quiet and unspoilt, this historic waterway is now a Local Nature Reserve and home to many otters, dragonflies, kingfishers, coots, ducks and swans. The canal is also rich in flora, including the yellow water iris, white water lilies and the early purple orchid.

On this 2½ hour return trip the barge travels for 1 hour to East Manley, where it turns around and moors up, allowing you the opportunity to take a short walk to see the one and only Aqueduct on the Grand Western Canal. Or you may like to stay and talk to the Horse as he rests awhile under the shade of a tree. You will hear some tales and history of the canal, and often there is a minute's silence so you can experience the true peace and tranquillity of travelling by Horse-Drawn Barge.

Cost, including hot fish and chips specially delivered at Manley Bridge, is £16.50 each.
